NEW YORK, June 20.—The Herald's

Washington special says: The expedition recently sent to the Wilderness to bury the remains of the soldiers who died in battle there last year, have accomplished the work and yesterday returned to this city.

A whole affair was under charge of Capt. J. M. Moore, quartermaster of Gen. Hancock's corps. The 1st regiment under command of Col. Baird were employed in the duty which they performed with much credit to themselves.

The operations were commenced on the 12th inst. and were continued without interruption until last Saturday, when the duty was completed. They commenced operations on the extreme right and worked around to the left.

The bodies which had not been properly buried were reburied; and in all cases where the graves could be identified, neat head boards, painted white, were placed over them, with the soldier's name and regiment inscribed upon it. Carpenters and painters were taken along to do the work promptly and thoroughly.

Over 700 graves were thus identified and marked. When it was impossible to identify them, they were marked as "U. S. Soldier—Unknown."

The remains of those who were found not properly interred were placed in caskets. The number of bodies found unburied were not as numerous as represented, and there was no odor from the graves.

Some of the bodies were found in places where they had been buried by some parties.

The head-boards to many of the graves were placed in the hands of many cases, rendering identification almost impossible.

Great irregularity exists in compiling with the legal forms of oaths of amnesty received in the State Department to date, containing vital omissions. In a large proportion of cases the residence of the person was wholly omitted.

Such omissions are held to invalidate the oaths in many cases, and the applicant suffers from delay.

The residence of the applicant is not prescribed by the President's proclamation, but is so obviously necessary that it should be omitted.

There has been received from the United States list of lands selected for the construction of the Pacific Railroad, amounting to 55,000 acres.

The selections were duly certified to by the Register, and are free from conflicting claims, are subject to selection under surveying, etc., duly deposited with the Assistant Secretary at San Francisco, as required by act of July 3, 1862.

The appointment of Mr. Van Dyck as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury at New York, is confirmed. He is expected to leave on Monday next.

The Tribune's special says that in accordance with the spirit of the act of Congress, no more than three names will be used, Secretary McCulloch has on his own responsibility directed the issue of three names to cease, with a view of bringing into circulation the nickel coin.

The names of the three coins, which are now in circulation, which it is believed have been hoarded to a great extent.

Governor Holden, of North Carolina, has been appointed as one of the judges in over thirty counties of that State, and the work is still going on. One of the duties of these justices will be to administer the oath of allegiance to the new State.

NEW YORK, June 20.—We understand that the condition of the telegraph lines in the South, and the pressure of official business is such that the transmission of news from the South will not be practicable before about the middle of July, soon after which the Associated Press will resume its old relation with the Southern edition.

He designated ten o'clock to-morrow morning for their next interview.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Letters have been received from the President, respecting the success of the Liberals.

This party is represented to be daily gaining in strength, and the Imperialists are losing, by desertions and other causes, in a corresponding degree.

The belief is confidently indulged that a prompt and successful campaign will be made before the first of January next.

It is understood that the Government is making arrangements to send to Atlanta a sufficient number of troops to relieve the necessities of the people in that section, for some time past have been reduced to the last extremities by famine.

The Federal authorities in Washington in regard to the enfranchisement of the blacks may be seen by the following report of a prominent member of the delegation, in reply to the question propounded by the writer as to what course the people of South Carolina would pursue in case the negroes were enfranchised.

He said: "Under no circumstances will the native-born citizens of South Carolina ever allow the negro to vote in that State; we will not tolerate such legislation."

The line of executive policy as alluded to by the President in conference with the South Carolina delegation, relative to the extension of the elective franchise to the colored freedmen, has awakened the city journals to a free discussion of this important issue.

The Chronicle, which is generally regarded as the exponent of the Administration policy, characterizes it as exclusive to expect Congress and the Executive to do that for the colored freedmen of the South, which the people of that State failed or refused to do for the better trained or more experienced free colored men in their section. It seems to be understood that the President's proclamation, which is so obviously necessary that it should be omitted.

It is contemplated lengthening the steamers St. Charles and St. Nicholas some forty feet.

The Missouri, hence for New Orleans, received 15,000 bales of hay at Cairo on Wednesday.

The Victor, a Government gunboat, arrived at Cairo on Wednesday, from Vicksburg. She is the boat built on the Germania model.

The Nashville is due from St. Louis today, having passed Cairo Wednesday.

The Germania Model Boat.—The other day we alluded to a new boat built for the Ohio and Mississippi Transportation Company, to ply between this city and Cincinnati. The People's Line as a fast passenger packet, the new craft is to be of the Germania model, the invention of Mr. Germania, of Buffalo, New York, we believe. He is a scientific gentleman, but the practical utility of his model is questioned. The following are the proposed dimensions, and power of the contemplated boat:

"It will be 125 feet long, 42 feet beam, with 7 feet hold. The machinery to consist of 7 five-horse boilers, the cylinders 34 inches in diameter, with 5 feet length of stroke. The water-wheels will be 10 feet in diameter, with 17 feet length of bucket."

These proportions are too large for the Ohio river trade, or rather the boat to be useful and handy should not be over 200 feet in extreme length. We believe it is claimed for the new model that it is easier of propulsion, and that a higher rate of speed will be attained by a boat thus modelled than by the boats now plying the western rivers. A rate of speed, equal to 15 miles an hour against the current, is claimed for the new model. It is a higher rate of speed than has ever yet been attained on the Western waters, and it would enable the boat to make the trip from New Orleans to this port in less than 100 hours.

Twenty years ago boats were plying on rivers that made more than fifteen miles an hour against the current of the Mississippi. We call to mind the boats of the late Mr. M. White and Peyton, the latter the fastest boat on the western waters, though she never made a trip to Louisville in four days, but five. She made 100 miles an hour, for four hours together, and passed the "wild Missouri" under way at the time, with ease.

We cite this to remind Mr. Germania that "fifteen miles an hour" is no marvel on our waters, but fast boats were not profitable. The boats of the late Mr. White and Peyton, as wood was purchased at from 75c to $1.50 per cord, and coal at 5 to 7c per bushel. Prices now are fully four hundred per cent. higher, having been gradually cut down. Our Western boats have since built their boats to suit the river and the times, and the motto of most of them was to get a boat to carry well and burn as little fuel as possible.

Now, the new style, or Germania model, is represented as a great improvement, easier to propel, lighter draught, and yet it will be used by referring to the size of the engines and boilers that she is to have. It is a style of model, better than the models of our boats, which apportion such immense power. There is not a boat built on the Ohio river which will not require to build a boat of similar dimensions and power to the above, to surpass her in both speed and usefulness.
